Letter from Superintendent Denise Juneau

As part of my initiative, Graduation Matters Montana, I created the first-ever State Superintendent's Student Advisory Board. We have had serious conversations about bullying and school climate issues. I heard several key points from the Student Advisory Board members: they want clear policies that are consistency applied and for adults to have the necessary training to be able to effectively intervene. Students want serious and effective interventions that put a stop to bullying behavior. Additionally, students want to be aware of their rights in school and out of school and for ending bullying to be a part of the culture of the entire school.

On July 1, 2013, a new rule in Montana's Standards of Accreditation goes into effect. The Student Protections Procedures rule requires schools to address bullying and threatening behavior in schools, on school buses, at school-sponsored activities, and online. The rule also establishes the minimum procedures that must be part of the school district's policy.

Every child deserves to feel secure, valued and surrounded by adults they trust at school. A positive school climate is foundational to a quality learning environment. As State Superintendent, I want parents and students to feel secure in knowing that no matter what school students attend or what town they grow up in, practical guidelines and protections that offer clear definitions and transparent procedures for investigations will be in place.

While respecting the authority of each local district to assume responsibility for its school climate, policies, and response to bullying, the Office of Public Instruction is providing resources for schools, parents, and students as we work at the state and local level to take on the challenge of bullying. Together, we will ensure Montana students have a safe and respectful learning environment so they can reach their full potential in the classroom.

When we work together, we can make Montana bully-free.

Denise Juneau,
Superintendent of Public Instruction

1. Clearly define bullying behavior, including harassment, and cyber-bullying.

Sample Definitions:

- Bullying is negative, often repeated, behavior with the intent to hurt someone physically or emotionally and involves an imbalance of power (physical size, social status) between the aggressor(s) and the target(s)
- Cyber-bullying is the use of cell phones, texting, social networking sites, email, or other electronic media to harass, threaten or intimidate someone. (Definitions adapted from www/bullyingprevention.org.)

2. Establish clear policies and procedures for how your school will address bullying behavior.

- School districts are required by the Board of Public Education under the Accreditation Standards (ARM 10.55.719, Student Protection Procedures) to have a policy and procedures to address bullying and harassment, including cyber-bullying.
- Provide training for teachers, staff (bus drivers, lunch room attendants, playground supervisors), students, parents and community members that includes what bullying is, how to prevent it and how to appropriately intervene.

3. Make bullying prevention and intervention part of the school environment by promoting a safe school and classroom culture where educators model positive behavior.

- Conduct regular assessments of school culture and track reported incidents of bullying. Useful survey tools that can provide your school with an assessment of school climate include the My Voice survey and the Youth Risk Behavior Survey.

- Require all faculty and staff to model the same positive behaviors expected of students with one another and with students.
- Increase adult supervision in areas identified as “hot spots” such as in hallways between class periods, playgrounds, the lunch room and bus stops.
- Commit to bullying prevention for the long term. Successful prevention efforts are an on-going part of the school curriculum and culture.
- Train school personnel and students in appropriate ways to respond when they observe bullying.

4. Establish clear guidelines for reporting, investigating, and responding to bullying incidents.

- Identify a person who is the point of contact at the school for parents, students, teachers and staff who need to take additional steps in reporting and/or intervention.
- Require a firm claim for investigating and response.
- Allow reports made by students, parents, guardians, or other individuals who are not school or district staff members, to be made anonymously and confidentially.
- Make a variety of reporting resources available to the school community including, but not limited to, an Incident Reporting Form, a voicemail box and a suggestion box.
- Depending on the severity of the incident, the school may also need to contact law enforcement authorities.

Adapted from DuPage County Best Practices in Bullying Prevention and Intervention: www.dupage.k12.il.us/main/anti-bullying/.../BestPracticesManual.pdf

Every school district is required to have policies and procedures for addressing the issues of bullying and cyber-bullying. Ask to see your district's policy and learn how your school is implementing the policy.

What is Bullying?

Bullying is negative, often repeated behavior with the intent to hurt someone physically or emotionally and involves an imbalance of power (physical size, social status) between the aggressor(s) and the target(s).

Physical bullying:

- Hitting, kicking, or pushing someone...or even just threatening to do it
- Stealing, hiding or destroying someone's things
- Making someone do something he or she doesn't want to do

Verbal bullying:

- Name-calling
- Teasing, taunting
- Insulting or otherwise verbally abusing someone

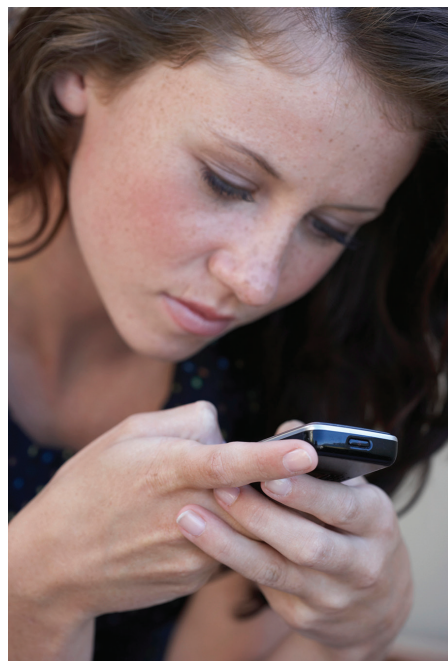

Emotional bullying:

- Refusing to talk to someone
- Excluding someone from groups or activities
- Spreading lies or rumors about someone
- Making someone do something he or she doesn't want to do

Cyber-bullying

Harassment, threats, or intimidation using computers, cell phones and social networking sites by:

- Sending hurtful or threatening emails or text messages.
- Posting photos or other information about without consent.
- Spreading lies and rumors.
- Creating a group or social networking page to target or exclude someone.

What to Do If You Are Being Bullied

Tip #1: How to respond as bullying is happening

- Walk away. Bullies want to know they have control over your emotions, so don't react with anger or retaliate with physical force.
- Protect yourself. If you can't walk away and are being physically hurt, protect yourself so you can get away. Your safety is the first priority.
- Report the bullying to a trusted adult. It's scary to report and no one wants to be seen as a snitch or tattle-tale, but you have a right to be safe at school. Adults are responsible to help with the problem without letting the bully know it was you who reported them.
- Repeat as necessary. Report each bullying incident until it stops. There is no reason for you to ever put up with bullying.

Tip #2: How to deal with a cyber-bully

- Do not respond to cyber-bullying messages.
- Document and report cyber-bullying. Save or print out emails, text messages or screenshots for reporting the incident to adults.
- Block the cyber-bully on your phone, IM list, websites or social media pages. Report inappropriate messages to an adult, the internet service provider or website moderator. Report threats against your safety to the police.

Tip #3: Avoid isolation

- Let People Know. Talk to a parent, counselor, coach, religious leader or trusted friend. Expressing what you're going through can make a huge difference to the way you feel, even if it doesn't change the situation.
- Don't blame yourself. It is not your fault. No matter what someone says or does, you should not be ashamed of who you are or what you feel.

The Stats: Bullying in Montana

In 2013, 38 percent of middle school students reported being bullied at school, and nearly 19 percent reported being bullied online. Twenty-six percent of high school students reported being bullied at school, and 18 percent reported being bullied online. (2013 YRBS Survey)

Bullying situations usually involve more than the aggressor and the target. They also involve bystanders—those who watch bullying happen or hear about it. Depending on how bystanders respond, they can either contribute to the problem or to the solution.

Hurtful Bystanders

Some bystanders encourage the bullying by laughing, cheering, or making comments, and other bystanders join in the bullying once it has begun.

Passive Bystanders

Most bystanders passively accept bullying by watching and doing nothing. Without realizing it, these bystanders also contribute to the problem. Passive bystanders provide the silent acceptance that allows people who bully to continue their hurtful behavior.

Why don't more bystanders intervene?

- They think, "It's none of my business."
- They are afraid of getting hurt or becoming a victim.
- They feel powerless to stop the bully.
- They don't like the victim or feels the victim "deserves" it.
- They don't want to draw attention to themselves.
- They fear retribution from the bully.
- They think that telling adults won't help or it may make things worse.
- They don't know what to do.

Bystanders who don't intervene or don't report the bullying often suffer negative consequences themselves. They may experience:

- Pressure to participate in the bullying.
- Anxiety about speaking to anyone about the bullying.
- Guilt for not having defended the victim.

Bystanders have the power to play a key role in preventing or stopping bullying by:

- Discouraging the aggressor from continuing the behavior.
- Reporting the bullying to adults.
- Working with a group of students to help prevent bullying at school.

Preparing children to become helpful bystanders

Adults can prepare students to become helpful bystanders by talking to them about the different ways bystanders can make a difference and by letting them know that adults will support them when they step forward.

Talk to your child about bullying

Make sure your children know what bullying is. If they know what bullying is, they will know what not to do and will be able to recognize a bullying incident.

Ask for a copy of the school's bullying policy and procedures. Every Montana school district is required to have policies and procedures to address bullying and cyber-bullying. Make sure you and your children know how to report an incident, whether it is your child being bullied or someone else.

Take bullying seriously

Listen to your kids when they talk about their days. Are they telling you about a bullying incident? Children may be embarrassed or afraid to acknowledge that they are being bullied.

Encourage your children to report incidents of bullying. Let them know that you will support them through the reporting process.

Report the incident to school personnel

Share your child's concerns and specific information about bullying incidents with appropriate school personnel.

Ask how the school plans to deal with the incident as well as their plans for preventing future bullying incidents as well as preventing retaliation.

If you feel the problem hasn't been addressed, follow-up with the school administration to make sure they are following the district's policies and procedures.

What NOT TO Do:

- Do not ignore your child's report.
- Do not advise your child to physically fight back. (Bullying lasts longer and can become more severe when children fight back.)
- Do not confront the child who bullies.
- Do not confront the family of the child who bullies.

Tips for Parents Dealing with a Child who Bullies

It can be difficult for any parent to learn that their child is bullying others. The sooner you address the problem, the better chance you have of avoiding the long-term effects this behavior can have on a child.

People who bully others:

- Are more likely to get into fights, vandalize property, and drop out of school.
- Have a higher risk of abusing alcohol and other drugs in adolescence and as adults.
- Are twice as likely as their peers to have criminal convictions as adults and four times more likely to be multiple offenders.
- Are more likely as adults to be abusive toward their intimate partners, spouses, or children.

Warning signs your child may be bullying others

Your child:

- Gets into physical or verbal fights with others.
- Gets sent to the principal's office or detention a lot.
- Has extra money or new belongings that cannot be explained.
- Is quick to blame others.
- Does not accept responsibility for his or her actions.
- Has friends who bully others.

What to do if your child is engaging in bullying behavior

- Educate your child about bullying. Foster empathy by encouraging your child to look at his/her actions from the victim's perspective. Remind your child that bullying can have legal consequences.
- Remember you are a model for your children. Kids learn from adults' aggressive and mean-spirited behavior as well as from acts of kindness and empathy.
- Establish consistent rules of behavior. Make sure your child understands your rules and the consequences for breaking them.
- Set limits with technology. Let your child know you'll be monitoring his or her use of computers, email, and text messaging.
- Seek Support. Talk to school personnel, mental health providers, the PTA or other parenting organizations in your community about how to address the issue. Also, there are many good resources online. (Review the "Resources" tab on the Bully Free Montana page).

School districts are not required to adopt these models, the provision of which is meant to exemplify effective school policies and enforcement procedures for the topic areas covered. The Montana Office of Public Instruction is not responsible for implementation or enforcement of any models adopted. If a school district in Montana wishes to adopt all or part of the Model Policies provided by OPI, that school district assumes liability for the implementation and enforcement of such policies. Bullying and Harassment may also be Discrimination

The U.S. Department of Education's Office for Civil Rights (OCR) issued a "Dear Colleague" letter of guidance to educational institutions and agencies across the country reminding them of their legal obligations to protect students from bullying and harassment pursuant to federal civil rights laws, including Title IX. <http://www2.ed.gov/about/offices/list/ocr/letters/colleague-201010.pdf>

The OCR letter explains:

The statutes that OCR enforces include Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 (Title VI), which prohibits discrimination on the basis of race, color, or national origin; Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 (Title IX), which prohibits discrimination on the basis of sex; Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (Section 504); and Title II of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 (Title II). School districts may violate these civil rights statutes and the Department's implementing regulations when peer harassment based on race, color, national origin, sex or disability is sufficiently serious that it creates a hostile environment and such harassment is encouraged, tolerated, not adequately addressed, or ignored by school employees.

The applicable federal laws do not specify discrimination based on sexual orientation, but the OCR clarifies that there is overlap between sex discrimination and harassment based on sexual orientation. When harassment targets a student for failing to conform to sex stereotypes (e.g., male who is perceived to be too effeminate looking or acting), it is considered sex discrimination that requires school officials' response.

Additional steps to address identified harassment or bullying-type discrimination may include: counseling and other appropriate resources for the affected students, providing school-wide training on the issues, issuing public statements on the school's policy regarding discrimination, and interim as well as long-term measures to protect students from alleged harassers.

When a student or parent believes a student is being harassed in a manner that is covered by Title IX, they should follow local school policies in notifying the school's Title IX Coordinator and request an investigation. If school officials are made aware of the harassment, but the affected student or parent believes the school has made inadequate response to the situation, they may file a complaint with the OCR. The local school Title IX Coordinator will have information on how to file a complaint, and additional information may be accessed at the following link: <http://www2.ed.gov/about/offices/list/ocr/complaintprocess.html>
